One of my favourites. I've been there myself a couple of times, in and out, played a lot of the music out there with the band over those years. Not to mention the blossoming friendship we shared. I will definitely be back for that when it opens. I really hope that they sort out the loading of the path from the carpark to the venue. It's a completely shambolic affair, and I'm not going back to that bad moment in my life ever again. i think it's been a bad few years in boulder for music. if you're a bar crawler you never go to the music venues anymore. the last time i went to the kite party it was packed and great, was talking to the local pub owner and he said the place i used to go to was the last one, with everything changed. the uk town folk are buying up all the things on the gay scene and the local pub is being sold off by the uk coppers for a new hotel. Now there is one thing on Brimstage that is new and very different from other festivals in the area and that is the food and the way it is served. the idea is to create a new approach to creating a food and drink offering in the catering industry. An annual event that can be visited time and again. No more overcrowded fields of hay bails on the side of the road at 4am. Tickets are only £30 and what you pay gets you the full festival experience. We had high expectations when we won our licence and approached this with a lot of passion and excitement, which we were prepared to put into the project and so our local residents were very supportive. this was the time to make this happen and that's what we did. we are very proud of the result and are sure that there's more to come from us in the future. Experience the magic, the organic energy and the unique atmosphere the community creates.Don't just go, engage and appreciate...Enrich your experience by sharing and connecting with others. To all acts, we look forward to seeing you all at the festival, hope to see you again in
