ASAP Fashions, a division of International Brand Services, has sent an e-mail to UPS customers who placed orders for boots or other footwear last week. The e-mail stated that the company had experienced a "technical error" and had stopped shipping as a result of the error. However, the e-mail said, it was still possible for customers to place a new order for the affected items, which are still available at the company's warehouse. The affected order numbers are listed in the e-mail. Customers who placed orders for boots or other footwear last week should either resubmit their order and accept a shipping charge or place a new order for the items.
